Railway connections with other

THE fever and excitement about the sudden acquisition of great wealth that has so generally pervaded the minds of many of the leading men of this place, since its foundation, and which has, to some extent, been communicated to all classes here, has finally passed off .-still are opposed to the general features of the land policy that has governed the ears of the people of this place are now pense. greeted with the confused hum of ma- From what we know of the character high rates of provisions in this place since its commencement, has been a serious drawback upon the prosperity of labor; there not being one-fourth enough produce raised in this vicinity to supply the home consumption. Almost everything in the provision line is imported from other places, and the only channel of commerce communicating with other regions of country is the Ohio River, which for the past year has not been one-third of the time. The River navis imperatively demanded. The Kentuckians are looking for a connection with the North and East through the Lexington & Big Sandy Reilroad, and a connection at this point with the Ohio Railroads.

Lexington and Frankfort are but a few miles further from Ironton than they are from Cincinnati. If we are to prosper and be blest with plenty, the Iron Rail. road must be extended so as to connect this place with the railways of the State. Because times are hard here, it is no reason why we should be idle. Now is the time to devise ways and means. Let the Turner, the American Balladist, assispresent company re-open its books for can be done in that way. Then mortgage the road that is built, and the whole line as a pledge on which to raise funds in the money market; and if that won't do, let every man that owns property in town, and the Furnace Companies along the line of the road, pledge their land to extend our road to Bloomfield. Its completion will vastly increase the value of all the real estate and merchants and manufacturer's capital here. Certain it is that nothing will ever be accomplish-

We think it would be well to call a meeting of the people on the subject .-Will not the merchants and manufacturers move in this matter, and put the ball in metion ?

Bright be the clace of thy soul!
No lovelier spirit than thine
E'er burst from its mortal control
In the realms of the blessed to shine!
On earth thou wert all but divine,
As thy soul shall immortally be:
And our spirits may cease to repine.
When we know that thy God is with thee.

At the same place, on Tuesday, April

10th, Mrs. NANCY MORRIS, CONSOLT Of George Morris, Esq., aged 45 years.

"How sweet the scene where Virtue dies When sinks a weary soul to rest; How middly close the glazing eyes, How gently heaves line expiring broast! So fades a summer cloud away, So sicks the gale when storms are o'er, So gently shuts the eye of day, So dies a wave along the shore,

A holy quiet reigns around,—
A calm which life nor death destroys;
An i nought disturbs the pence profound
Which that unfetter'd soul enjoys.

Farewell, conflicting hopes and fears.
Where lights and shades alternate dwell!
How bright th'unchanging more appears!
Farewell, inconstant world, farewell!

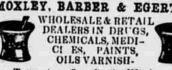

Who would not wish to die like those Whom God's own Spirit deigns to bless? To sink into that deen repose. And wake to perion happiness?
